Craft as a Freelance Website Copywriter

Ready to carve website copy from anywhere? We're hiring for Freelance Website Copywriter, paying $25-$35 an hour, full-time. If you're set to chisel content, etch research, or refine your drafts, this is your freelance blade. No office bench—just your remote cut and a steady wage.

Freelance Website Copywriter roles are carving out as companies etch writers for digital faces—landing pages, sites, and more. New carver or sharp blade, this is your cut. Let's chisel the role, skills, and crafts.

Key Responsibilities

As a Freelance Website Copywriter, you'll chisel copy that clicks. You'll etch pieces—like homepage cuts or product carvings—per client designs, carve details for depth, and refine drafts for a clean edge. You'll hit carve dates to keep the craft sharp.

This is your freelance workbench. One day, you're cutting a brand face; the next, a service etch, shaping edges—sleek or bold—for the fit. If a piece chips or a client re-carves, you'll adjust, earning $25-$35 an hour while sharpening your craft.

Your days mix solo cuts with online client etches—no office grinds. It's your freelance blade with full-time edge.

Qualifications and Skills

For Freelance Website Copywriter, we're after carvers who can etch words and lock carve times. A solid internet connection is your chisel for this remote cut.

No copy cuts yet? No nick—this is open grain. If you've scratched a note or a post, you're in the groove. Tools like Docs or a grammar edge are a perk, but we'll sharpen you. Clear client designs keep it clean.

No degree to carve—your cut counts. If you can refine a draft or love new grains, you're set for $25-$35 an hour in website craft.
