Freelance Writer Online – Remote Kindle Publishing Assistant – No Experience or Degree Needed

Description
Position Summary:
Trying to become a freelance writer online can be discouraging. You're told to build a portfolio, pitch countless clients, and accept unpaid "exposure" gigs before earning your first dollar. But what if there was a faster, more structured way to start writing online and actually get paid for your work—without competing on freelance platforms or cold-pitching strangers?

Our client, a globally active nonfiction publishing company, is hiring entry-level Kindle Publishing Assistants to help build and launch nonfiction eBooks using AI-powered tools, ready-made templates, and repeatable systems. This is not blogging. It's not ghostwriting for other writers. And it doesn't require previous experience. You'll follow a step-by-step process that guides you from topic to published book—earning income for every completed project.

If you've been trying to get your foot in the door as a freelance writer online, this is your real, paid starting point.

What You'll Do
You'll receive nonfiction publishing assignments based on proven Kindle demand. Topics range from productivity and remote work to simple health routines and personal development. For each assignment, you'll be given:

- A pre-written book outline
- A keyword list and topic brief
- Access to an AI content generator
- Kindle manuscript formatting templates
- Amazon listing swipe files for titles, descriptions, and keywords
- A final publishing checklist to ensure quality control

Your job starts by launching the AI tool and generating content for each chapter using preloaded prompts. You won't be writing from scratch. Your role is to clean up what the AI produces—correcting grammar, organizing the content, and ensuring clarity based on the given outline.

Once you've polished the manuscript, you'll format it using a Kindle-optimized template. This involves inserting chapter headings, page breaks, a clickable table of contents, and applying consistent layout rules. A visual checklist will help you stay on track.

Next, you'll create the Amazon product listing. You'll use fill-in-the-blank templates to write a keyword-rich subtitle, SEO-focused book description, and choose
