Searching for no degree remote tech support jobs? This beginner-friendly opportunity lets you break into tech support without needing a diploma—or a headset. A subscription-based digital tools platform is hiring support assistants to guide users through simple tech problems using only chat and email.

You'll answer questions about login errors, subscription setups, password resets, and basic product usage. No coding, no phones, and no prior tech experience required—just clear communication, problem-solving patience, and full training provided.

Your Core Responsibilities

- Handle incoming support chats and email tickets from users
- Troubleshoot account access, subscriptions, and user settings
- Use templated scripts and internal help documents to answer questions
- Escalate technical bugs or advanced issues to senior tech support
- Document case resolutions and tag tickets correctly
- Keep tone clear, helpful, and professional in every message

Why This Role Is Perfect for You

- No degree needed. Entry-level training provided for all hires
- Zero calls. All support is chat and email based
- Real full-time or part-time flexibility. Pick your hours weekly
- Weekly pay. Reliable income without waiting weeks
- Skill-building. Get real technical support experience you can grow with

What You'll Need

- Laptop or desktop with Chrome browser
- Reliable internet (minimum 10 Mbps)
- Typing speed of 45+ WPM
- Good written English and reading comprehension
- Ability to stay focused and calm while handling support queues
