Content Creator – Remote – No Experience Needed – AI Publishing

Description
Position Summary
A technology-driven digital publishing firm is expanding its nonfiction Kindle catalog and is actively seeking remote freelance assistants to help build, edit, and format books using AI tools. This position is open to complete beginners and requires no prior writing experience, degree, or publishing background. The work is fully remote and structured to be beginner-friendly with a complete toolkit and training provided.

Unlike traditional writing jobs that expect creativity and extensive portfolios, this role emphasizes your ability to follow processes, use AI to produce structured content, and help manage the formatting and publishing stages of nonfiction books on Amazon Kindle. If you're looking for writing jobs from home with no experience required, this role is a fast track to real-world publishing work with pay-per-project compensation and long-term opportunity.

Project Scope and Workflow
This position involves repeatable publishing tasks, not original writing. You'll be guided through structured book production assignments, each with defined stages and pre-built materials. The steps typically include:

– Niche Assignment and Content Brief
You'll receive a nonfiction topic with a guided outline and chapter breakdown. Popular themes include wellness, self-help, entrepreneurship, and productivity.

– AI-Generated Content Review
You'll use custom prompts in the client's AI tool to produce draft chapters based on the brief. Your job is to select and refine the best outputs, organize them according to the outline, and ensure smooth flow between chapters.

– Content Cleanup and Structuring
Using a step-by-step formatting checklist, you'll polish the content by removing repetition, standardizing headers, inserting calls-to-action, and ensuring readability across Kindle devices.

– Kindle Formatting and TOC Creation
You'll transfer the text into a pre-built Kindle layout, create the Table of Contents, and finalize the structure using provided templates in Google Docs or Word.

– Listing Data and Upload Prep
You'll generate a compelling title, subtitle, and Amazon description using keyword prompts and title formulas provided. No copywriting experience is needed—these are fill-in-the-blank tools.

Why This Role Works for Beginners
The system is designed around templates, swipe files, AI prompts, and guided workflows. It's structured for people who are motivated, process-driven, and eager to work from home, even without prior experience. If you've ever looked at traditional freelance job boards and felt overwhelmed by competition or portfolio requirements, this system offers a streamlined alternative.

Expected Daily Activities
– Start the day by selecting a book project from the client dashboard
– Use AI tools to populate the content
– Edit and reformat the text
– Finalize layout and listing materials
– Submit your work and receive feedback/payout

Projects are self-paced and take 5–8 hours on average. Most freelancers complete 1–2 per week, depending on their availability.

Key Qualities We Look For
– Comfortable with Google Docs, basic web tools, and written English
– Reliable access to a computer and internet
– Process-oriented and detail-focused
– Can work independently and follow checklists
– Interested in learning the Kindle publishing process

Tools and Training Included
– Video tutorials for each task
– AI prompt templates and usage guides
– Kindle-ready formatting files
– Listing optimization tools
– Dedicated chat support for project questions

You don't need to bring any tools or systems—everything is included.

Compensation
– Flat-rate payout per project (disclosed at assignment)
– Weekly payments via PayPal or direct deposit
– No hourly tracking or timesheets
– Opportunity to increase earnings through higher-volume output and bonus projects

This is not employment or salary-based; it is freelance contract work with flexible scheduling.
